

A Special Offer to OptumHealth Physical Health Network Providers

Electronic Health Records Search Made Simple

There are currently more than 400 Electronic Health Record (EHR) suppliers in the market. Starting your search may seem overwhelming. We have investigated three promising suppliers, all of which:

- Offer certified EHR solutions, allowing eligible users to apply for CMS¹ incentive funds
- Leverage the Web for cost-effective service delivery
- Include competitive discounts for OptumHealthSM participating providers

Tips for Successful EHR Selection and Implementation

- Demo the program to make sure it fits with your practice and specialty.
- No system is perfect “out of the box” – almost every user will find the need to make some type of modification.
- Consider the company’s customer service department. How do they support their users?
- If possible, find out what other customers have to say about the EHR solution.
- Consider quality and financial measurements. How will you compare your practice with EHR to your practice before EHR?
- Think about your office work flow. How will it be affected by EHR?
- Anticipate challenges. An incremental approach to implementation generally leads to greater long term success with minimal productivity losses.
- Clearly identified roles and responsibilities will save the day. Have a point person (the clinic EHR expert) whose responsibility it is to train and troubleshoot.

¹ CMS: Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services

² CCHIT: Certification Commission for Healthcare Information Technology

³ ONC-ATCB: Approved by the Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology (ONC) of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) as an Authorized Testing and Certification Body.
